Planning activities: document templates— Integration test plan

- Integration test plan is important in an iterative development environment.
- Specific sets of functionality will be delivered before others.
- Out of these increments the full system slowly emerges.
- Since small, localized behavior should have already been tested. Integration tests should be more complex and more comprehensive than the typical component tests.
- Individual test plans are combined to form the integration test plan for a specific increment.
- Integration test depends on other test cases, so no template is provided.
